The next holiday comes in September—Labor Day.

Now it's Senator Andrews. Or at least it will be, just as soon as the November election is over.

It is just a matter of a few days until the school bell will ring again, bringing to an end an enjoyable vacation for the children and instructors.

Home building remains the order of the day in Lake region. Belle Glade and Pahokee lead the list with many new homes going up in each town.

Growers in the Lake region say that the largest early fall crop in history will be planted the first of September. Maybe it's a good idea and maybe it isn't. Only time will tell.

Seed houses in our section are making ready for a busy season. Implements handled by them are being assembled and everything will be in readiness in a few short weeks for another busy vegetable season.

Pioneer growers of the Lake region are predicting that more acres of cabbage will be planted this fall than ever before in the history of the Glades farming. All we can do is hope for an excellent crop and a favorable price at marketing time.

Tuesday's election proves that a fellow shouldn't let George do it. Many of Doyle Carleton's friends remained away from the polls thinking the ex-governor wouldn't need their ballot. Results show that about 5,000 too many took too much for granted.

A headline says that "scientists eagerly watch Lindy's artificial heart." All these years we have thought that the great aviator was equipped with an honest-to-goodness, genuine blood-pumping organ. Which all goes to prove what you can learn by reading the papers.

Belle Glade is to be congratulated upon completion of the beautiful new postoffice erected by the Baptists. Dr. Bentley, the pastor, hopes that a church will be built to coincide in beauty with the postoffice. The pastor's hope is home will be dedicated Sunday with appropriate ceremony.

Several days ago work was halted on Conner's highway between Canal Point and Twenty Mile Bend. Word from Tallahassee yesterday is to the effect that the road will be resumed tomorrow. That word will be welcomed by every resident of the Lake region since Conner's highway is a permanent link in the road system leading from this section to the coast.

BASS FOR BAIT

Work of the Florida Junior Chamber of Commerce to protect the game black bass is by no means finished.

We have the report of The Stunt daily News on the use of black bass—chopped up into bait—by the seiners of Lake Okechobee. It is not a pretty picture.

At the last legislature the state junior chambers put on a concerted drive which resulted in passage of a law to prohibit the sale of black bass, and thereby removed them from the markets of the continental fisherman.

But to aid and behold! The Okechobee fishermen seine them just the same and cut them into bait to attract the catfish which are sold in great quantities from this state. Certainly no one could fail to see the absurdity of the law to destroy the black bass in so doing is nothing short of criminal.

The fact that Lake Okechobee, by virtue of the law, is considered salt water makes it impossible to sell bass in the state to combat the bass. The law should be changed, therefore, to place Lake Okechobee in the proper classification of a freshwater lake. Only a legislator with an eye to the wishes of the fishermen would ever make such a ludicrous legal definition. It is to be said that a lake 40 miles from the ocean, and holding one of the great reservoirs of fresh water south in the United States.

It is plainly up to the junior chambers to carry out to completion their half-finished task of protecting the black bass of Florida—Miami Herald.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

The genuine, real, actual, concrete piece built for the proposed bridge over the dike, canal, the Ocala Star calls "convincing evidence that the federal government completes the construction of this giant waterway."

Then the stucco gateposts five miles out in the woods from any house in the town are evidence that their boom subdivisions will come true—Tampa Tribune.

AS THEY DO IT NOW

No longer does the college graduate head for the financial district to get a job selling stocks and bonds. Instead of that he puts his fraternity pin in his pocket, packs his college sweater in the bottom of his duffel bag, chucks Xeno-phon, Casse, and applied mathematics into the alley, hies adds evidence that their boom subdivisions will come true—Tampa Tribune.

Florida has a climate that is unsurpassed both in winter and summer. The people of the whole country know about our winter seasons, and show their appreciation by coming in great numbers to enjoy its delights and comforts. There are no winter months in Florida. It is our own blamned fault. We bring it on ourselves. In fact we go of our way to get it.

Now according to all authentic reports from here, the recent storm wasn't a very serious affair. While it did some damage in northwest Florida, there were more lives lost right here in the Glades than anywhere else. A boat capsized in Lake Erie and several people were drowned when an unexpected squall came up. Maybe Florida papers featured that story. I haven't had a chance to check them yet to see, but they will tell you that when a Chicago paper carried plenty about the Florida hurricane, with headlines you couldn't miss and a picture of a man in a boat, you know the story. Why? Because the publishers of these papers like to give Florida a bad name. The Glades editors are friendly to Florida. They have proven it by giving us many columns praising the Florida climate at this time in the coolest part of the year. TO CHART STORM BY STATIC CRASH
Scientists Say Storms Can Be Located From Sound

The Florida Works Progress Administration office has announced "encouraging" results were obtained during the recent hurricane with apparatus developed at the University of Florida to "point out" storm centers.

The hurricane location experiment at the university is being directed by Prof. Joseph Weil and is financed by the Florida Works Progress Administration.

The scientists are basing their work on a theory that each tropical disturbance sends out static crashes which reveal its location, thus acting as a radio beacon.

Tests made at the University during the storm which crossed the southern tip of the state after striking again at Vero Beach showed that the disturbance did broadcast its location continuously by means of static.

The announcement said it remained to be determined whether all hurricanes "will be equally easy to locate."

During the storm static crashes were photographed by apparatus in use at the University Experiment station, and by studying the pictures the scientists were able to determine the direction from which the signals were coming.

To obtain the pictures, made on motion picture film, the workers used as cathode ray oscillograph tube. This comparatively new scientific development changes electricity into light beams. The pictures give the impression of heavy object dropped into a pool of light sending the beam scattering.

The pictures give the impression of heavy object dropped into a pool of light sending the beam scattering.

Repeated tests are necessary to determine which beam points to the storm center.

The WPA announcement said that in a number of instances the hurricane's static broadcast corresponded precisely with weather bureau reports. In others it varied slightly. In no case was the variation greater than ten miles.

The University of Florida expects to be carrying on in cooperation with similar work at the University of Puerto Rico under the direction of Prof. R. W. Conrad.

The scientists believe that if both stations are able to plot the direction of the storm, they can determine the location of its center by comparing points. Plotting the two directional lines on a
